Universiti Teknologi MARA (UiTM), the largest public university in Malaysia by enrolment and campus size, officially came into being as full-fledged university on the 26th August 1999.

Established first as a training centre in 1956 called RIDA (Rural & Industrial Development Authority), UiTM's early history as a bastion of social engineering to empower the predominantly rural indigenous community through skills-enhancement initiatives, has seen it evolves into a university that has grown in strength and size at par with its counterparts at home and abroad.

UiTM continues to explore new intellectual frontiers, transforms that knowledge into innovations and produce graduates that are industry adaptive, and remains committed to its integral role in social engineering for the community, the nation and the world at large.
